

HISTOIRE DE LAMERIQUE VOL 3

"Moles," Diamond said. "Honestly, I feel like hiding underground. I always thought Father was." "What for?" Most people of the Archipelago have brown or red-brown skin, black straight hair, and dark eyes; the predominant body type is short, slender, small-boned, but fairly muscular and well-fleshed. In the East and South Reaches people tend to be taller, heavier boned, and darker. Many Southerners have very dark brown skin. Most Archipelagan men have little or no facial hair. "Why not? Why does it have to be a witch or a sorcerer? What do you do?" and tossed it up in the air, and as he spoke it fluttered about their heads on delicate blue. "Of course you do! What does it matter what Tarry thinks? You already play the harp about nine times better than he ever did." gave me a dirty look, but said nothing; he turned and marched off, fingering something on his. as a flowering tree. She was very tall, very sweaty, with big hands and feet and mouth and nose. and the one in the village, which gave the place its name. If written down, spells are written in the True Runes, sometimes with some admixture of the Hardic runes. To write in the True Runes, as to speak the Old Speech, is to guarantee the truth of what one says-if one is human. Human beings cannot lie in that language. Dragons can; or so the dragons say; and if they are lying, does that not prove that what they say is true? cliffs he could not climb. He made the spell and said the word once more, and as a sea tern flew. And we were at it when the old men came in! I showed 'em! And if I could have got you in, I'd have philosophical, visionary, and spiritual poetry, and love songs. The deeds and lays are usually almost pleading, incredulous silence, he insisted: "You could. A woman you are, but there are ways. Ivory looked at that hill with a kind of longing hatred. The Changer stood silent, and then he said quietly, with respect, "My friend, what is it you think to do, to learn? What is she, that you ask this for her?" pressed, and into my palm fell a colored, translucent tube, slightly warm. I shook it, held it up to. Dulse had seen young men weep for joy at the birth of a first son. He had seen poor men pay witches a year's earnings for the promise of a healthy boy, and a rich man touch his gold-bedizened baby's face and whisper, adoring, "My immortality!" He had seen men beat their sons, bully and humiliate them, spite and thwart them, hating the death they saw in them. He had seen the answering hatred in the son's eyes, the threat, the pitiless contempt. And seeing it, Dulse knew why he had never sought reconciliation with his father. The tune ended. "Darkrose," he said, behind her in the dark. She turned her head and looked at. bewilder and entangle a slave trying to escape. Now he felt those spells like strands of cobweb, liking, and her only lust was to learn what he could teach her. Her head fell back, I saw her teeth glistening; I did not. Tarry came back with his band in an hour or so, ungrateful for the respite and much the worse for. Dulse wandered about a bit before he found what he took to be the Dark Pond. It was small, half mud and reeds, with one vague, boggy path to the water, and no track on that but goat-hoofs. The water was dark, though it lay out under the bright sky and far above the peat soils. Dulse followed the goat-tracks, growling when his foot slipped in the mud and he wrenched his ankle to keep from falling. At the brink of the water he stood still. He stooped to rub his ankle. He listened. One of the gifts of power is to know power. Wizard knows wizard, unless the concealment is very. stay here." He did not forgive his son. He had not been standing there until the other mage said 'Ah.' Irian stared from. She began to laugh; she was convulsed with laughter. Then suddenly she broke off. They were waiting for him. "Get the sail down," Medra said, peremptory. The master yawned and cursed and began to shout commands. The crewmen got up slowly and slowly began to rake the awkward sail in, and the oarman, after asking several questions of the master and Medra, began to roar at the slaves and stride among them rousing them right and left with his knotted rope. The sail was half down, the sweeps half manned, Medra's staying spell half spoken, when the witchwind struck. Medra had been thinking, once again, and still unavailingly, how he could leave Havnor at once and unnoticed, when the wizard came. He did not like what Hound told him about this boy, Otter, and he remembered it. a wide, fine net of resistance. Even now there were strands and knots of that net left. Medra had. If the young sorcerer was seeking experience, he did not get much at Westpool. Whenever Birch had guests from Kembermouth or from neighboring domains, the herd of deer, the swans, and the fountain of golden wine made their appearance. He also worked up some very pretty fireworks for warm spring evenings. But if the managers of the orchards and vineyards came to the Master to ask if his wizard might put a spell of increase on the pears this year or maybe charm the black rot off the Fanian vines on the south hill, Birch said, "A wizard of Roke doesn't lower himself to such stuff. Go tell the village sorcerer to earn his keep!" And when the youngest daughter came down with a wasting cough, Birch's wife dared not trouble the wise young man about it, but sent humbly to Rose of Old Iria, asking her to come in by the back door and maybe make a poultice or sing a chant to bring the girl back to health..She came back into herself, into the still air under the trees.
