house by rights. But after a century of feuds and fights over it, my granddad let the place go to. He had not thought. He had taken the shape that came soonest to him, run to the river as an otter would, swum as the otter would swim. But only in his own form could he think as a man, hide, decide, act as a man or as a wizard against the wizard who hunted him. "Something toxic, you understand. Strong. Alcohol. . . or don't they drink it any more?" "We must give what we have to give," said Medra. "If all but us are slaves, what's our freedom. castration and butchery. "Is she misnamed?" the Doorkeeper asked the Namer. "That wall is not as deep-rooted as my trees," said the Patterner. watching, listening; and she knew how tricky the paths were, and that the Grove was, as the Grove because the leaves of the trees spoke your name to me before you ever came here. Irian, they evenings. But if the managers of the orchards and vineyards came to the Master to ask if his. He told Dragonfly very little of his plans, largely because he made few, trusting to chance and his own wits, which seldom let him down if he was given a fair chance to use them. The girl asked almost no questions. "Will I go as a man all the way?" was one. The Patterner never came to her much before noon, so she had the mornings free. She was used to solitude, but still she missed Rose and Daisy and Coney, and the chickens and the cows and ewes, and the rowdy, foolish dogs, and all the work she did at home trying to keep Old Iria together and put food on the table. So she worked away unhurriedly every morning till she saw the mage come out from the trees with his sunlight-coloured hair shining in the sunlight. you vowed to keep. She has no place here nor ever will. She can bring only confusion, dissension, had won his staff on Roke, was used to having boys come to him begging to be tested and, if they. "To come here," he said. He was beginning to tremble less. His bare feet were a sad sight, bruised, swollen, sodden. She wanted to tell him to put them right to the fire's warmth, but didn't like to presume. Whatever he was, he wasn't a beggar by choice. "I've often wondered why I let the boy in," said the Doorkeeper. He said nothing. In fact he was at a loss. If he had known it would be this easy, he could have had her name and with it the power to make her do whatever he wanted, days ago, weeks ago, with a mere pretence at this crazy scheme - without giving up his salary and his precarious respectability, without this sea voyage, without having to go all the way to Roke for it! For he saw the whole plan now was folly. There was no way he could disguise her that would fool the Doorkeeper for a moment. All his notions of humiliating the Masters as they had humiliated him were moonshine. Obsessed with tricking the girl, he had fallen into the trap he laid for her. Bitterly he recognized that he was always believing his own lies, caught in nets he had elaborately woven. Having made a fool of himself on Roke, he had come back to do it all over again. A great, desolate anger swelled up in him. There was no good, no good in anything.
